CAPE VOICES

I'M IN LOVE

by Hilda Bottomley

All my life I've loved Cape Cod. Perhaps it has been a deeper love because it is my adopted home and not the place of my birth, a little like the way a woman cares for a child she has chosen for her own and in which the duty toward its blood plays no part. But being IN love is different from merely loving. It is a mania, a madness, an obsession. And to love a bit of land and water can bring a deep fulfillment.

MY place is a locust-embraced, pine-girt point of land lying happily in two arms of the sea, its head in a cove. Once there was a house there for lilacs bloom and a clematis vine while great sheafs of yellow broom whisper to purple lupin at its feet. The tide comes in on a tiny beach of white sand and a lone seagull poses on the one remaining post of an abandoned pier. Mother Quail marches her progeny through the field and there are deer tracks. There are oyster beds along the bank, quahogs in the sand and flounders for the taking. In the morning the sun touches the top of the pines and gilds a path up the cove, at night the moon turns it to silver while at sunset rainbow colors flow from an immortal brush.

Friendly boats sail or chug up toward the little harbor; hopeful or happy fishermen wave a greeting. But there is no noise, no haste, no stress. Only the 'peace of God which passeth understanding' and the distant carillon from a white church spire chiming across the water.

As the tide flows back to be rejuvenated and refreshed in the deep surge of the sea the weary river of my soul goes with it to return each day, assuaged, reborn, responding to life again in a deep thankfulness.

Bound up in ice and snow, harried by winter winds, shivering in sleet or in my chimney corner I yearn for my love, my Cape, my warm embracing summer Eden. To lie on that cool slope of land and gaze down the inlet toward the misty sea, yes lie on the breast of my love—that land forever mine and find—serenity.

I'm in love—but never shall I tell you where my haven lies, the place of my tradition. But search and you may find it—Cape Cod is yours, too.

WE KNOW YOU'LL ENJOY

Summertime in the theatre is the traditional time for comedy, and Cape Cod will have its goodly share of laughter. As the sixth attraction of "America's Most Famous Summer Theatre," Richard Aldrich in association with Charles Mooney is honored to bring to the stage of the Cape Playhouse one of America's most distinguished actresses, BILLIE BURKE in the sparkling comedy, "Mother Was A Bachelor." This comedy by Irving W. Phillips based on a short story by Myrna Lockwood will play a six day engagement beginning Monday evening, August 8.

Staged by Frank Carrington and Agnes Moran the cast will feature Edwin Cooper, Terry DuHaime, Suzanne Jackson, Donald McClelland, George McIver, Susan Seaforth, and John Cecil Holm.

Fresh from her triumphant nationwide tour in "Life With Mother" the famed comedienne undertakes a role quite different from the giddy women that have characterized her film career. As Ellen Smith in "Mother Was A Bachelor," Miss Burke is a warmly sympathetic, entirely believable person whose life has been devoted to serving her relatives, the Pierce family.

A veteran trouper, Miss Burke's introduction to grease-paint came in London at the Prince of Wales Theatre. There she played Mamie Rockefeller in "The School Girl," showing the first flicker of the stellar radiance that later brought her international popularity. Six plays later she was the toast of London and en route to the United States to star with John Drew in "My Wife." Yankee audiences found this English import irresistible (actually Miss Burke was born in Washington, D.C.) and she swept all before her in subsequent engagements in "Love Watches," "Mrs. Dot," "Suzanne," "The Runaway," "The Amazons," "Jerry," and countless other Broadway stagings.

West Coast moguls-to-be reached out with motion picture offers soon after the medium was developed. Miss Burke said YES,—the same answer she had given to fabulous Florenz Ziegfeld's proposal of marriage a short time before.

Famous-Players-Lasky starred her in many silent films, while she was commuting back to Broadway for "A Marriage of Convenience," "The Truth Game," and others; and then came the first talkie, "A Bill of Divorcement." Her inimitable comedy touch made her a contract star of M-G-M for years, and "Dinner At Eight," the "Topper" series and "The Young in Heart" are but a few of the many hit films that resulted.

Through the years she has added thousands of fans with each new appearance whether in "Mrs. January and Mr. X" on Broadway or "Father of the Bride" in films. Also turned authoress, she has given the world a delightful Burke's-eye-view of show business in her autobiography, "With a Feather on My Nose."

With a single setting designed by Paul Bertelsen of the Playhouse staff, performances for "Mother Was A Bachelor" have been scheduled nightly through Saturday, August 13, at 8:30 p.m. with matinees on Wednesday and Friday at 2:30 p.m.

MISS MARY HOWES

If Cape Cod is one day the scene of an internationally recognized art festival, it will be mainly due to the realization of a "dream" held by an attractive woman who is associated this summer with Richard Aldrich's Cape Playhouse.

Mary Howes, daughter of the late New England philanthropist, Ernest G. Howes, is well known as the founder and producer of the now famous Palm Beach Playhouse. A long-time friend of Mr. Aldrich, she is with the Playhouse this summer because "it is good for one producer to see how another producer operates and because I have such great admiration for what Mr. Aldrich has done at Dennis." (Richard Aldrich is now in Spain as Deputy Director, U. S. Foreign Operations Mission.)

Miss Howes' dream of some day taking an active part in making the Cape the center of a large scale arts festival comes from her recent tour of European music festivals, where she attended concerts in Holland, Lucerne, Salzburg, Beyreuth and Edinburgh. "Art is the one thing that brings all persons together."

Although this is Miss Howes first visit to the Cape in a number of years, it is, in a way, a sentimental journey. One of her ancestors, Thomas Howes, landed here with the founding fathers in 1632. A native of Brookline, Mass., Miss Howes has lived most of her life in Europe and England, where at the age of sixteen she enrolled in the Royal Academy in London. She later studied acting at the Repertory Theatre in Boston and received her "first real acting job" as the ingenue at the Wharf Theatre in Provincetown, where Eugene O'Neill's earlier plays were first produced.

Understudying Katherine Hepburn in "The Warrior's Husband" led to roles on Broadway in such plays as "Foolish Notion," the Kaufman and Hart comedy, "Merrily We Roll Along," "The Women," "Wine of Choice" for the Theatre Guild, and "Angela Is 22" by Sinclair Lewis. She has also appeared in a film made in South America by Andre Roosevelt, cousin of Theodore. Miss Howes' stock experience has included acting stints at Elitch Gardens in Denver, and five years at Cohasset "in the little theatre in Town Hall." Cohasset was another project spearheaded by Mr. Moore and supported by Mr. Howes.

It was at Cohasset where stars like Humphrey Bogart and Broderick Crawford got their early acting experience. So it was also at the nearby Cape Playhouse that Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, Anne Baxter, Lloyd Nolan, Robert Montgomery, Gregory Peck and Ann Revere had their beginnings at this "cradle of the stars."

Mary Howes founded the Palm Beach Playhouse four years ago. No theatre had existed there for many years, and it is almost entirely due to Miss Howes' efforts that Palm Beach can boast of one of the finest theatres anywhere in America. The Playhouse is located on the site of the former Poincianna Hotel, and was selected upon the recommendation of Mr. Aldrich. "It's a lovely place, located in the slate house where the hotel used to store its palm plants," Miss Howes explained. "The house was remodeled on the lines of the Globe Playhouse, but it is decorated in a distinctively Victorian motif." The Playhouse operates from January through Spring and features such stars as Shirley Booth, Helen Hayes and Billie Burke. Not everyone has had the opportunity of having an idealistic dream come true in so brief a time as Miss Howes, who has seen her vision of a center for the theatre in Palm Beach becomes a tangible reality. The Playhouse has a resident company and presents both musical and dramatic productions, and at the end of four years of successful operation, Miss Howes has the heartfelt gratitude of the Palm Beach community for bringing Broadway to Florida.

Miss Howes, besides serving on the board of the American Theatre Wing, traveled around the world last summer, visiting the various art centers of all nations with a group of people invited by Columbia University, who sponsored the tour. Highlights of the trip were the performers of the "Kabuki Theatre" in Tokyo, where also a special performance was presented for the American visitors of the court dancers at the Imperial Palace.

Whether or not Cape Cod does become a major art festival center in America remains to be seen, but the success of such a "dream" will come closer to reality with the help and support of such dedicated persons as Mary Howes, who has already demonstrated that a cultural centre such as the Palm Beach Playhouse can come into being.

SANDWICH GLASS IS FAMOUS

by J. Robert Kershaw
(Editor of the Wareham Courier and the Bourne Courier)

When Deming Jarves came to the Cape in 1825 to establish himself in the glass business, little did he think that his product would be much sought after by collectors a century and a quarter later.

Jarves, at his factory in Sandwich, manufactured, not the fancy collectors items, but a useful, household line of glassware. Most of his product was sold in the ordinary store and at prices which were in the range of almost every householder. It was moderate priced and designed rather for utility than for beauty.

Today, now that the Sandwich Glass factory has been demolished, Sandwich glass items have become museum pieces and are getting harder and harder to come by.

A few private collections are being broken up from year to year and a rather extensive assortment of the glass is in the hands of the inevitable antique shops throughout the Cape, but pieces are becoming scarcer and prices are getting higher.

Those who are interested in viewing the product of this famous factory, or who wish to compare a piece they own with the real item may find satisfaction in visiting the Sandwich Glass Museum in Sandwich. This museum, which features Sandwich glass and early Americana has probably one of the largest collections of genuine Sandwich glass in the country. All styles are represented, including the heavy pressed, fluted, lacy, threaded pieces from the hands of Nick Lutz, one of the biggest names among Sandwich workers and the Deming Jarves ruby and gold. An interesting collection of goblets and small plates is also on display. The goblet collection holds practically every kind that was ever made at this ancient factory.

In addition there are plenty of samples of broken glass and cullet, picked up at the factory grounds as well as some of the tools of the glass maker and blower.

The glass collection is owned by the Sandwich Historical Society which maintains the museum in which it is housed. The museum is open every day from 10 to 12 and from 1:30 to 5.

A trip to the Cape is never complete without a visit to this fascinating home of some of the most fabulous glass ever made. Here in Sandwich was devised a brand new method of pressing glass, and here it is that the first mass production of glass started a trend in other fields as well.

A trip to the Cape should mean a day at the Sandwich Glass Museum, opposite the site of the first grist mill and across the street from the ancient Town Hall.

SOMETHING NEW HAS BEEN ADDED

Perhaps you have noticed. Something new has been added. Tucked away in the corner of the lobby is a selection of ANCHOR BOOKS—most of them on the theatre—some of them on everything else—which is yours just for the asking plus a small pittance usually less than a dollar.

We didn't select all the Anchor Books, just the ones we thought you would be interested in looking at during intermissions or curling up with on the beach. Among the dozen books that we picked are The Modern Theatre volumes containing such plays as "La Ronde," "The Threepenny Opera," and "Thieves' Carnival," Six Plays by Strindberg, Stendhal's Charterhouse of Parma, Gide's Lafcadio's Adventures, and for the more serious moments—The Lonely Crowd by David Riesman, and A Collection of Essays by George Orwell.

Why don't you take a look at them?

SHIRLEY BOOTH (Ruth Sherwood)

Shirley Booth has been honored so frequently by the various award-giving groups of the entertainment world that Time Magazine recently capsuled her as "the hottest thing in show business" and "the first lady of the American stage and screen." For her Academy Award performance in the screen translation of "Come Back, Little Sheba," the judges at the Cannes International Film Festival simplified matters even more by proclaiming her "the world's best actress." Miss Booth's success was not an overnight one as those who have followed her career well know. She had been on the Broadway scene almost steadily for two decades in featured and supporting roles before attaining stardom, but winning honors even then in such plays as "Three Men On a Horse," "Excursion," "The Philadelphia Story," "My Sister Eileen," "Tomorrow the World," "Hollywood Pinafore," and "Goodbye My Fancy" for which Miss Booth appeared under the managerial banner of Richard Aldrich and Richard Myers. It was "Come Back, Little Sheba" in which she so hauntingly played the slovenly Lola, that put her name up in lights, not only on Broadway, but also on movie marquees the world over when the William Inge drama was subsequently filmed. The musical version of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" served further to establish her name in the lush and colorful pastures of musical comedy. For her efforts in this

George Abbott-Betty Smith musical as the saucy and lovable Aunt Cissy, she received the coveted Donaldson Award. Recent semesters on Broadway's Main Stem have found Miss Booth spinning more of her histrionic magic as the spinsterish American business girl vacationing in Italy in "The Time of the Cuckoo," which was the last production to play the now departed Empire Theatre. Last season she garnered further critical acclaim as Lottie Gibson in the musical, "By the Beautiful Sea." Miss Booth's performance in "My Sister Eileen" marks her third stellar appearance at "America's Most Famous Summer Theatre" this season. In the words of John Chapman of the New York Daily News, "Shirley Booth can do anything in the theatre better than anyone else can."

PATRICIA BARRY (Eileen Sherwood)

Patricia Barry has continually won high critical praise for her starring role as Laurie James on the NBC-TV Daydrama, "First Love" in addition to previous other stellar appearances of note on the leading networks. Before her marriage in 1950 to producer-director Philip Barry, Jr., son of the late playwright, Miss Barry was under contract to Columbia Pictures where she figured prominently in some eighteen films including "Undercover Man" with Glenn Ford. During her three year tenure on the West Coast for Columbia her travels on location brought her East for the filming of "Tattooed Stranger." The lure of Broadway detained her fortunately and she received critical accolades in the "Pink Elephant," opposite Steve Allen followed by still further acclaim for her portrayal in "The Paradise Question." Summer playgoers across the nation enthusiastically applauded her performance as Patty O'Neill in the F. Hugh Herbert comedy, "The Moon Is Blue." Michiganders were extremely receptive to her role in Arthur Miller's poignant drama, "The Crucible" at Ann Arbor's Drama Festival during the season of '54. An alumnus of Stephens College Patricia Barry is heartily welcomed for this, her first appearance at the Cape Playhouse.

SHOP SLEUTH

by Blanche Robinson

I wonder how many of you summer visitors who attend the Playhouse regularly ever arrive an hour or two early and explore the Dennis Shops—they are well worth spending the extra time.

Dennis is the village about which Scott Corbett wrote last year in "We Chose Cape Cod"—a particularly delightful sidelight on how Cape Cod lives the year around—its vocations, avocations and amusements. It was in East Dennis that the Corbetts "chose" to reside and they have not regretted it.

If you give yourself time you'll be well rewarded by a trip to the Tower on Scargo Hill—the view at sunset is gorgeous and magical. You can even see the Bridge at Sagamore, 25 miles away silhouetted against the orange and vermilion of the setting sun.

The shops in Dennis are simple country stores, you'll find no garish displays there, but to watch HARRY HOLL, the potter, turn a vase or some of his unusual stoneware will take you back to those primitive times, when all pottery was made by hand.

Are you a lover of antiques? Some of the quaintest pieces I have seen are at the HOPE LANE SHOP—just two minutes down the street from the theatre, and they are shown in the dearest old house—a half salt-box built in 1732. Be sure to allow time to go there and be sure to ask to see the ancient staircase.

If you can't arrange that, drop in on a Sunday night at COUNTY FAIR on Route 6A for a Buffet Supper with Turkey. I guarantee you'll enjoy either—a weekday or Sunday repast.

Someday, you may be so intrigued with the legends and peace and beauty of Dennis, you too, will want to become a permanent resident, or, at least, an annual visitor with a home to come to. When that day arrives, call on CLARK POTTER, realtor, directly across the street from the theatre and see what inviting homes he has for sale. You won't be able to resist them.

Can you remember when there was no such thing as a "vacation with pay" in many industries? Today everyone in business gets at least a week off with pay. Now there are 300 million dollars spent annually on vacations.

Each individual wants something different—a banker may like fishing, a secretary wants to tour the cities of Europe, a mother longs to sit on the beach and relax, a youth plans to climb mountains, others camp out. An old Cape Codder once said he "just liked to sit and think and sometimes just sit."

You who are here today, like summer theatre, but you also have other interests and hobbies. Many of the things you need to carry out yours and your family's hobbies, you can locate at the PLAYER'S PHARMACY here in Dennis—cameras, as well as trained pharmacists to fill that suddenly needed prescription.

One of the amusements summer people have brought to the Cape, not prevalent among the early settlers, is the cocktail party—a social gathering before dinner. Have you found a reliable package store for your needs? Just two or three miles from here on Route 6A, across the line in Yarmouth Port is TOWNSEND'S SHIP

AND SHORE PACKAGE SHOP, reputed to carry the choicest liquors.

And I know where to get one of the choicest dinners on Cape Cod, after your cocktail party. It's at WINDSWEPT. For goodness sake, don't return to your homes for the winter without having lunched, dined, or danced at WINDSWEPT on Scarsdale Rd. You might plan to lunch—attend the matinee—return for cocktails, dine sumptously, attend the CINEMA and later dance to the music of the Bob Hayes Trio in CAPTAIN LUTHER'S LOCKER at WINDSWEPT. On a high point of land, overlooking the town and the sound, WINDSWEPT is all that its name implies.

If you are making a day of it, and have plenty of time before the matinee or evening performance, do visit the CHRISTMAS TREE GIFT SHOPS on Route 6A, Yarmouth Port. If you haven't much time —then wait and make a special trip, because the CHRISTMAS TREE SHOPS are simply fascinating and you need to browse to assimilate all the beautiful and unique Christmas decorations, creches, and cards, and to focus your mind in August on what to give for Christmas.

You have never seen so many suggestions for all occasions as you will find in the two CHRISTMAS TREE SHOPS—the Old Barn and the Old Corner Shop, both on the corner of Willow St., where you turn to go to Hyannis.

Whether you carry out all these diversions or just sit and think and restore your spiritual reservoirs for next winter, may your vacation be a happy and a restful one.

I saw a couplet in the Boston Globe recently, which expressed it perfectly—
"Thy blessing, Lord, on all vacation days,
For weary ones who seek the quiet ways."

All of these properties adjoin each other. The income derived from such ownership is used for its maintenance and development. Joshua A. Nickerson is the President.
